Negro Frustrates Bank Robbery In El Dorado Today

Runs When Bandit Orders Him To Elevate His Hands.

OFFICERS FIND MASK

Disguise Discovered On Top of Car Block From Institution.

EL DORADO, Nov. 27.—(AP)—A negro porter refusing to throw up his hands at the command of a hooded bandit is credited today by officers of the National Bank of Commerce & Trust Company with frustrating an attempt to rob the bank.

The negro, Henry Harris, bank porter, entered the bank early this morning to attend to his usual duties. Turning on a light in the director's room he was startled by a curt "stick 'em up" ignoring the command, the negro ducked behind a partition and ran from the building to summon help. The bandit escaped.

Find Disguise
Police engaged in a search found pieces of khaki overalls and a black hood on top of an auto a block from the bank, where it is believed the would-be robber tossed them in his flight from the building. No other clues were discovered.

Police cling to the theory that the robber secreted himself in the basement of the building Tuesday afternoon, planning to make employees captive as they entered the bank this morning and escaping with funds from the vault and safe when the time locks opened at nine o'clock this morning.

Shoots Wife and Commits Suicide

Jonesboro Man Shoots Wife Twice Thru Heart After Quarrel.

JONESBORO, Nov. 27.—(AP)—Shooting his pretty young wife twice through the heart as she lay by his side in bed, Marion Boden then turned on himself, a .45 caliber pistol on himself and committed suicide here early today.

Police learned that the wife yesterday had started divorce proceedings against the husband, but had returned to their room for the night. David Elrod, a roomer at the house where the murder-suicide occurred, told police he found the bodies when he went to the door of their room to awaken them this morning.

Homers told police that they heard a muffled shot about three o'clock this morning, followed by a cry, but thought it was outside the house and did not investigate.

Wants To Go To Jail But Court Is Obdurate

BUFFALO, Nov. 27.—A "tough break" is the way Roger McGuire, 38, is home described.

Brought into court as a vagrant, McGuire pleaded to be sent away for 30 days as a birthday present, having advised the court he had just attained that ripe age.

City Judge Weiss pondered, reflected and gazed out the window. "I am very sorry," he said after much deliberation, "the penitentiary is too crowded now. I cannot grant your request."

McGuire was given a hot meal and then told to be "on his way."

State Death Rate Becomes Alarming

169 Die From Auto Accidents Since January 1 Report Shows.

Automobile accidents caused 169 deaths in Arkansas during the first three months of this year. Mrs. Mary Ellis Brown, supervisor of vital statistics in the state Board of Health at Little Rock said yesterday. During the first eight months of 1928, 146 deaths resulted from automobile accidents. The highest number of deaths in one month this year was 38 in September.

In announcing the figures Mrs. Brown said a report issued recently by the Travelers' Insurance Company of Hartford, Ct., showed that in 11 states requiring all automobile operators to be licensed from 10 to 15 per cent of the licenses issued last year were revoked.

Hoover's Choice

Herbert F. Seawell, above, of Carthage, N. C., recently nominated to be a member of the Board of Tax Appeals, is the first Carolinian appointed to a major position by President Hoover.

He Made A Mistake and 'Twas His Last

He brushed his teeth twice a day with a nationally advertised toothpaste.

The doctor examined him twice a year.

He wore his rubbers when it rained. He slept with the windows open. He stuck to a diet with plenty of fresh vegetables.

He relinquished his tonsils and traded in several worn-out glands. He played golf—but never more than 18 holes at a time.

He got at least eight hours' sleep every night. He never smoked, drank or lost his temper.

He did his daily devotion daily. He was all set to live to be a hundred.

The funeral will be held next Wednesday. He is survived by eighteen specialists, four health institutes, six gymnasts and numerous manufacturers of health foods and antiseptics.

He had forgotten about trains at grade crossings.

Mayor, Chief and Cop Pinched On Same Day

GILROY, Cal., Nov. 27.—Pinched—all within 24 hours—the mayor, the chief of police and the traffic officer. Believe it or not, that's what happened in this Santa Clara valley city.

Mayor "Smilin' Jim" Princeville and Chief of Police George Easton fell victims to a drive on violation of the arterial stop law, and each paid $1 to Judge J. M. Hoesch as a fine.

Traffic Officer Paul Tremaine chuckled as he watched his notable victims pay up, but they had their revenge when they learned that Tremaine had been cited by State Traffic Officer Ardy Mercer for irregular headlights.

Will Ask Death Penalty In Stone County Outrage

Prosecutor Says Has Evidence To Warrant Sentences To Chair.

FIRST IN 25 YEARS

Killing Was To Prevent Mental Incompetent From Marrying.

MOUNTAIN VIEW, Ark., Nov. 27.—(AP)—The death penalty, imposed on but one man in Stone county in the last quarter century, will be sought by Prosecuting Attorney Hugh Williamson for the five men accused of the torture slaying of Connie Franklin.

The trial, set for December 16, is expected to reveal the details of the most amazingly brutal crime in the history of Arkansas which, the prosecutor says, he believes was motivated by a desire to prevent the Franklin boy, a mentally deficient, from marrying a young girl of the community.

Many Witnesses Called

Williamson said today that 15 or 16 witnesses would testify for the state as to the charge of mutilation and then, as the boy lay fainting, tossing his body on a burning brush pile. The prosecutor, who incidentally will be arrayed against his younger brother Ben C. Williamson, chief counsel for the defense, said he believes he is in possession of evidence enough to send the five men to the electric chair.

The motive of the crime, in the opinion of investigating authorities, was to prevent Franklin, former inmate of the state insane asylum and practically a stranger in the St. James mountain community, from marrying Tiller, a family in this backwoods settlement. The girl and boy were on their way to a Justice of the Peace to be married when the band interrupted them one night in March last.

The girl is the chief witness for the state. She said she stood by horrified as the boy was mutilated and his body tossed upon a funeral pyre.

China Asks That League Interfere

Seeks Peaceful Solution of Trouble With Soviet In Manchuria.

GENEVA, Nov. 27.—(AP)—Dr. Wu Kai-Seng, Chinese delegate to the League of Nations, laid the Nanking government's attitude toward the latest development in the Russo-Chinese situation in Manchuria before Sir Eric Drummond, secretary-general of the League, this afternoon.

LONDON, Nov. 27.—(AP)—Great Britain is prepared to participate with other powers in an action to bring about peaceful settlement of the trouble in the Manchurian region.

Foreign Secretary Henderson made this reply to a questioner in the House of Commons this morning.

TOKYO, Nov. 27.—(AP)—Views of Secretary Stimson over the Russo-Chinese situation were conveyed to the government at Tokyo today by Ambassador Buchholz, following a conference with the Secretary Monday.

The opinion indicated the United States contemplated taking no action at this time, preferring to assist some other nation in settling the problems.

German Dance At Elks Hall Begins At 12:01

Promptly at the stroke of twelve tonight, Jimmy Pryor's 10-piece orchestra will swing into the strains of the opening number of the Elks German dance, midnight to dawn. One of the things to make a real dance to the presence of plenty home folks to welcome guests, and tonight the promises given that more Hope people will be in attendance than at any like event in some time.

The orchestra is among the best ever heard in this city—where many good orchestras have appeared—and with promise of a good attendance from near-by towns it looks like a successful evening is coming up. Of course, should the crowd gather by 1 o'clock desire to do a bit of stepping the orchestra will be glad to oblige. The hall will be open throughout the evening for the convenience of those desiring to use the rest or recreation rooms.

Highway 67 May Be Open Thursday

Major Stanford Says If At All Possible Traffic Over Road Permitted.

Major R. B. Stanford, district engineer with the State Highway department, announced here last night that if it were at all possible the road between Hope and Prescott, where paving has been under way for some time, would be opened to traffic Thursday to accommodate the crowds desiring to use the road in their Turkey Day travels.

The job, according to the engineer, is not yet complete, but in view of the fact that the weather has made the necessary detour around construction hard going intends using the road if it can be done without injuring the work already completed.

Meantime, the suggestion is made that the quickest trip from Hope to Arkadelphia tomorrow, while the longest way round, would be to Lewisville, Dardo, Rossion and on to Gravel all the way, no detours and, consequently, no pull-outs.

B. & P. W. Club Holds Postponed Meeting

With Misses Emma Green and Genie Chamberlain as joint hostesses, the Hope Business and Professional Women's Club held its regular semi-monthly meeting last night at Hotel Barlow. The meeting had been postponed from the Tuesday night preceding because of the annual banquet of the Chamber of Commerce on the former date, but the affair of last evening more than compensated for the delay.

Miniature turkeys strutted over the table, the dining room appointments being in keeping with the Thanksgiving season. The center piece in the round table was chrysanthemums, banked with clematis, a beautiful light.

In the contest for the best Thanksgiving telegram offered, blanks from Western Union, all dressed up in Thanksgiving trimmings, were used. The prize was awarded to Miss Vellie Reed, the acoustic she submitted bringing a peal of laughter from the members and guests present.

Miss Edna Jones was a guest of her sister, Miss Mary Jones, for the evening. Next meeting will be held Tuesday night, December 3, at Hotel Barlow, with Miss Beryl Henry as hostess. On Tuesday night, December 10, the club goes to Washington to present a chapter to the recently-organized B. & P. W. Club in that little city. Hope is mother-club to the Washington organization and have pardonable pride in the success the junior member is attaining.

Another Grade Crossing Takes Toll of Humanity

CANTON, N. Y., Nov. 27.—(AP)—Four young men, believed to be St. Lawrence University students en route to their homes for the Thanksgiving holidays, were killed at Governor crossing here today when their car was hit by a New York Central train.

Wandering Powder River Plays Its Tricks Again

BROAUS, Mont., Nov. 27.—The temperamental Powder river, which already has left two bridges high and dry is acting up again. This time the wandering river ventured its spite on the Moorhead road. It sliced off a goodly chunk of highway, necessitating a detour.

This summer the "bad boy" stream threatened to change its channel again and, for a third time, leave a steel span on dry land with nothing to bridge. Only strenuous efforts of farmers prevented the occurrence.

THANKSGIVING DAY

In 1776 and 1778, Congress declared a Day of Thanksgiving for the victories of the Continental Army.

In 1789, and again in 1795, President George Washington proclaimed a National Thanksgiving Day.

President Madison ordered a Day of Public Thanksgiving for the successful termination of the War of 1812.

Following the Madison Proclamation for Thanksgiving, nothing further was done, in this respect, for thirty years.

We then became largely indebted to Mrs. Sarah Hale, of New Hampshire, for the reestablishment of a National Day of Thanksgiving, who had privately observed such an occasion in her own household, as a day of feasting and charitable ministrations to the hungry poor about her.

National Thanksgiving Days, previously proclaimed, were occasions for tendering thanks for successes in battle, or achievements of honorable peace.

It was the constant purpose of Mrs. Hale, for which she earnestly and prayerfully strove, for many years, to establish a Day of Thanksgiving upon which to render thanks to God for His many gifts, blessings, and mercies to mankind.

She wrote and appealed constantly through the columns of her Magazine, known as "Godey's," for the establishment of a National Day of Prayer and Thanksgiving, and throughout a generation she appealed to the Presidents of the United States and the Governors of the States to set aside a Day of National Thanksgiving.

By 1863, she had succeeded in getting Governors of twenty-five states to proclaim a Day for Public Thanksgiving, but a National Day of Thanksgiving was not proclaimed until the year 1863, when President Lincoln declared a Day of Thanksgiving for the victories of his armies.

But this declaration did not fully satisfy Mrs. Hale, for it was not for the victories in battle that Sarah Hale wanted a Day of Thanksgiving, nor for the achievements of human hands and human efforts, but she wished a National Day of Thanksgiving, when all the people might render thanks to God for plentiful harvests, public health, peaceful pursuits, prosperous times, and all His other manifold blessings, richly bestowed upon our Country and our fellow men.

She finally gained the promise from President Lincoln that while he remained President, he would annually proclaim the last Thursday in November, as a Day of National Thanksgiving.

Succeeding Presidents, and likewise Governors of the States and Mayors of our Municipalities, have followed this custom down to the present time, setting aside the last Thursday in November, of each year, as a special Day of Thanksgiving, calling upon all our people to refrain from their daily labors and vacations, in order to render their thanks and devotion to Almighty God for His countless good and perfect gifts to us all.

Let us return thanks to God, and give evidence of our sincerity by seeking out the poor and unfortunate, in our midst, and rendering such aid to them, as we would wish to receive, under similar circumstances.

"The King shall answer and say unto them, Inasmuch as ye have done it unto one of the least of these My brethren, ye have done it unto Me."

Woman Bootlegger, 70, Given Court Leniency

KALISPELL, Mont., Nov. 27.—The 70 years of Marie Maginnis, Montana's matriarch bootlegger again have saved her from jail.

Marie—probably the oldest woman beer vendor in Montana, if not the west—made a tactical error. One of beer, she urged a group of thirsty looking, smiling gentlemen "to come back later, won't you boys?" They came back and brought with them a warrant for her arrest.

Although a suspended sentence of the year previous hung over her, Federal judge Pray dealt leniently with Marie and merely locked up her residence for one year. She can live there if she raises a $1000 bond.

Seek Man Wanted In Auto Accident

Cars Collide At Highway Intersection and One Driver Flees.

HOT SPRINGS, Nov. 27.—(AP)—Officers are searching today for Walker Merriott, alleged driver of an automobile which collided with another late yesterday, probably fatally injuring Merriott's niece and seriously injuring another passenger. Merriott fled after the collision, leaving the injured to their own resources.

Merriott's niece, Merle, aged five, suffered a fractured skull and another occupant of the car sustained a broken knee.

A man by name of Adkins, in the seat with Merriott at the time, thought to be from Beaudry, is also being sought.

C. T. Reynolds, of Pineville Junction, Mo., told officers that he and the one driven by Merriott collided at a highway intersection. Reynolds was uninjured. Adkins and Merriott officers said, were both drinking.

And They're Not Prize Winners for Fightin'

GLACIER PARK, Mont., Nov. 27.—The Thanksgiving thought of the Indian boys is that they didn't raise their roosters for fighting purposes.

Superintendent Campbell of the Glacier National Park reservation in his agricultural educational program has taught them the birds are more valuable for commercial purposes. And the smiles on the kid's faces tell the rest of the story—their Plymouth Rocks were prize winners at the Agricultural and Industrial Fair recently held at the agency up in Montana.

Besides, they are marketable at a good profit for Thanksgiving Day, turkey being scarce in this immediate region.

Four Generations In Barber Chair On Same Day Establishes New Record

It would be a decidedly uncommon occurrence for any one barber to have four members of the same family as his customers on the same day—but when Ben Southward Tuesday had four generations of the same family in his chair at his shop here he unquestionably set a record for all other tonsorial artists to shoot at.

In order, the customers were: "Grandpa" Laster, 92 years young; Webb, his son, who is only a mere trifling 58; Webb, Jr., grandson, who will count 26 his next birthday and has, but by no means unimportant, little Miss Betty Jean Laster, granddaughter.

Says Half Mill Levy for Agents Outside the Law

Asks Quorum Court To Permit Him To Appeal From Decision.

UP TO CIRCUIT COURT

Justices Say Want Matter Disposed of Finally At Early Date.

That the tax levy of one-half mill, made by the Quorum Court of this county at its meeting Monday in Washington, will be contested in the courts is indicated by a petition filed by Luke Monroe, well-known local attorney, who Monday afternoon asked and was granted permission to file an appeal from the decision of the Quorum Court to the Circuit Court. The petition for appeal was filed by Mr. Monroe as a citizen and taxpayer when the Quorum Court convened for the afternoon session. The petition asserted the levy of a half-mill tax for the specific purpose of paying salaries of county and home demonstration agents was illegal and prayed permission to appeal the ruling to the Circuit Court.

After the matter had been argued out on the floor the permission was granted, the vote being 14-11, the statement being made by many of those favoring the appeal that they voted for it to settle the question finally and at an early date and in such way as not to embroil the county in expensive litigation.

Makes Special Levy

The Court, after studying appropriations suggested by Judge Wilson, used a pruning knife unsparingly, terminating its economic session by cutting the tax levy for general purposes from five to four mills, then adding one-half mill levy for county and home demonstration agents and passing a resolution that the funds so raised should be used for the purpose of paying salaries to the agents and no other.

Efforts to reach Mr. Monroe this morning were fruitless and it is not known when the action will be filed. It is said by those holding opinion adverse to the levy, however, that it will be brought at once and the Court asked to advance it on the docket for speedy consideration.

Search Resolves Itself Into Seige As Negro Hides In Canebrake.

ROUNDWAY, Miss., Nov. 27.—(AP)—The search for Tom Travillion, negro, alleged to have shot and seriously wounded Burnett Caraway, planter, yesterday, today developed into a seige with the negro believed hidden in a canebrake.

Caraway, carried to a Greenville hospital yesterday shortly after the shooting is still in a serious condition. Efforts to capture the negro were spurred on by offers of a reward by Caraway's friends.

The Men Who Do Things

THE story writers who picture business and military leaders who really do things as square-jawed, first-pounding, bull-voiced individuals—quick of action and emphatic of purpose—are all wrong.

Take it from Colonel Leonard P. Ayres of Cleveland, O. He is vice president of the Cleveland Trust Company now and one of the nation's most celebrated experts on business. He was chief statistician of the A. E. F. during the war. Thus, Colonel Ayres is in position to know the leaders in both of these fields.

Addressing a convention the other day, Colonel Ayres recalled many of the war and business leaders with whom he is acquainted and declared that no one of them is the fire-eater that is usually pictured. Instead, his experience has proved, the men who accomplish the most are of the quiet, unassuming type who use their brains more than their voice.

There are no dashing leaders in commerce or in war, he said. It is the unassuming person—perhaps just a little bit bashful, but nevertheless thinking all the while—who does the most to wip the enemy in war and the business competitor in peace.

Thus, it seems that the moral of all this is: Never mistake noise for ability; real ability needs no theatrics to advertise it because the best advertisement a man can have is the ability to get results.

Exit the Loan Shark

THE day of the old-fashioned loan shark, with his usurious rates of interest and heavy-handed methods of collection, is fast passing.

Twenty-eight states have passed laws governing small loans which carry as punishment for violation both fine and imprisonment. Twenty-three states do not permit the charging of "fees," limiting the cost of the loan to interest only. Twenty-seven states require that the interest be computed only on the unpaid balances. Practically all of the larger industrial states have enacted regulatory laws.

It is difficult to estimate the toll the unscrupulous loan shark exacted from salaried men who, through sickness or other misfortune, were in need of ready cash. However, with regulation and control some idea of the size of the business can be obtained. Fairly accurate figures show that approximately $500,000,000 of such loans are made yearly. The average loan is $123, which would place the yearly number of loans at 4,000,000.

The largest single company in the business, making loans at 2 1/2 per cent a month, reports $30,000,000 out on loans with 235,000 customers on its books.

Speed Dangerous?

FOR a long time there has been a theory—held, among others, by this writer—that fast automobile traffic was not necessarily dangerous.

This theory has found expression in the lifting of the speed limit in a number of states and cities. It has been felt that the old, rigid speed limits did not really cut down the number of accidents, but merely delayed traffic.

But maybe the theory needs revision. At any rate, the city of Cleveland some time ago lifted its speed limit from 25 miles an hour to 35 miles. And since that was done, automobile traffic deaths have run nearly twice as high as they did before.

Perhaps it would be a good thing to stick to the old speed limits for a while, after all.

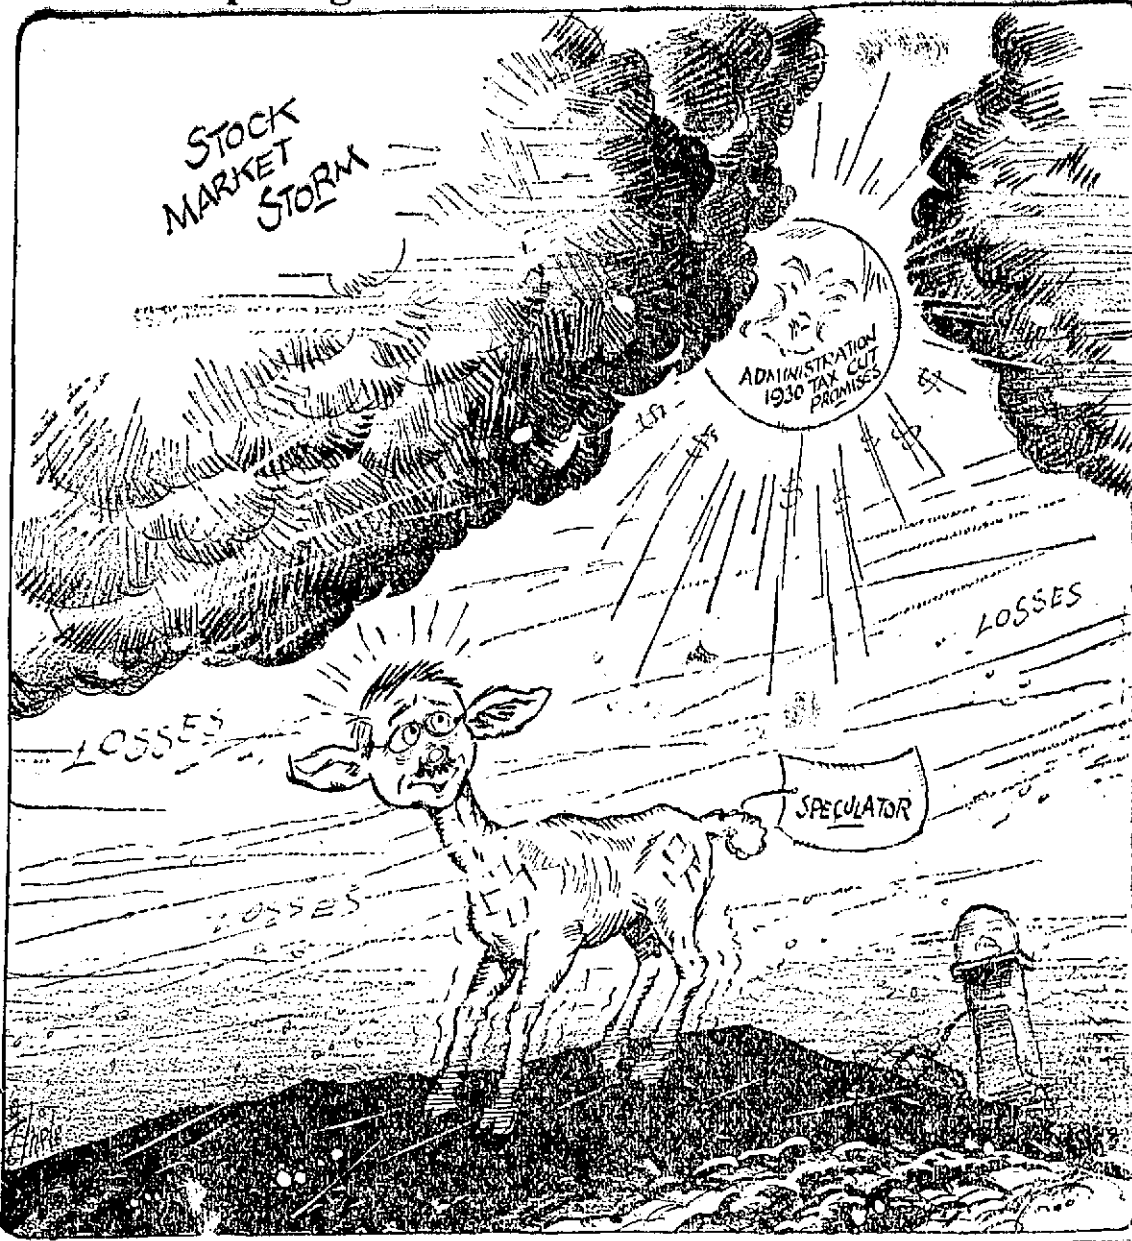

Not A Bad Idea

IN Washing it is rumored that the next presidential campaign will see a new ticket in the field—a ticket backed by the elements—represented by the Democratic and Republican senators who are now making such merry hash of the administration's tariff bill.

It will be a long time before 1932 comes around, of course, and this kind of talk at present can be nothing but conjecture; but it might not be a bad thing if something of the kind should happen.

There has been, in recent years, altogether too little difference between the two major political parties. A new alignment that would give us too widely divergent schools of thought to choose between would be a rather healthy thing for the country.

Tempering the Wind to the Shorn Lamb!

WASHINGTON LETTER

By RODNEY DUTCHER

WASHINGTON—Few persons have any idea of the extent to which American labor unions have branched out in a great variety of activities for the benefit of their members.

The larger and stronger the union the greater are its efforts to extend its field of service to members beyond its original field of wages, hours and working conditions. It is indicated in a bulletin published by the U. S. Bureau of Labor Statistics covering a survey made by Florence E. Parker.

The great majority of labor organizations were found to have some program for assisting members meet the calamities of death, illness or accident. Some unions make provision after a member's death for his surviving family.

A few of the well-financed ones provide annuities for members incapacitated by age, illness or disability and several large international unions maintain homes for their aged members, who are usually given the alternative of a pension. The cost of the pension system, however, is usually prohibitive.

Nearly $25,000,000 was paid in benefits and insurance by 73 international organizations in 1927, along with more than $3,000,000 old-age pensions, half a million dollars for union homes for the aged and an undetermined sum in unemployment benefits. Death benefits of individual international unions run from $20 to $1500 and disability benefits from $50 to $9000. Old-age pensions range from $5 to $70 a month and old-age lump-sum benefits from $50 to $800.

In recent years the unions have been seeking when possible to throw the responsibility for unemployment upon the industry, although continuing their own efforts to lighten its efforts on their members. In some industries they have at least partially succeeded, notably in the clothing, cap and felt industries. The Amalgamated Clothing Workers have agreements in Chicago, Rochester and New York providing for a contributory system borne jointly by the union and the manufacturers. In rare cases employers have also been persuaded to pay death or sick benefits.

A number of unions provide various health services for workers and there has been a rapidly increasing tendency among labor leaders to devote more attention to extending recreation and sport facilities.

Many types of business have been entered by the labor groups. Among these ventures the labor banks, some of which have had trouble through faulty management and others of which have thrived, are the most widely known.

Labor has also gone into the business of manufacturing bricks, making cigars, coal mining, farming and hotel operation. Some of the other enterprises undertaken have been the extension of credit for building purposes and personal uses, investment service, writing of life insurance, establishment of stores where only union-label goods are sold, cooperative stores where patrons benefit in proportion to the amount of their patronage, mail-order departments in the union organization, manufacture of bakery goods, washing the members' clothes and providing funerals at cost.

Some of these businesses have been started primarily for profit, but in most cases some other reason has figured. Sometimes they are used to help organize a union, sometimes to bring up the trade wage level, sometimes to furnish employment, sometimes to increase union bargaining power and sometimes to increase benefits.

The Bureau of Labor Statistics discovered eight trade union home-loan organizations which make loans at reasonable rates to members who want to buy their own homes. One especially strong union has built a 300-family apartment house in New York City.

There are 2,330 taxpayers in American Samoa.

Judge not, that ye be not judged. For with what judgment ye judge, ye shall be judged; and with what measure ye mete, it shall be measured to you again.

And why beholdest thou the mote that is in thy brother's eye, but considerest not the beam that is in thine own eye? Or how wilt thou say to thy brother, Let me pull out the mote out of thine eye; and, behold, a beam is in thine own eye?

Thou hypocrite, first cast out the beam out of thine own eye; and then shalt thou see clearly to cast out the mote out of thy brother's eye. . . . Ask, and it shall be given you; seek, and ye shall find; knock, and it shall be opened unto you. . . . If ye then, being evil, know how to give good gifts unto your children, how much more shall your father which is in heaven give good things to them that ask him?—Matthew 7:1-11.

In the picture you see Moran meeting Mack, the forming of the famous team—their struggle for recognition and you climb with them to success. They show you just how they make up their funny patter and best of all you see them in real life as well as in their black face, doing their rib-cracking dialect.

Cardui Helped Kentucky Lady Who Had Been Very Weak and Nervous.

Vanceburg, Ky.—Mrs. Mary Parker, of this place, says she has recommended Cardui many times because, as she says, "I was so greatly benefited after taking it myself. "I was weak and nervous, and felt tired and achey all the time. My back and limbs ached so bad, I could hardly stay on my feet to cook a meal. "I spent most of my time resting, and trying to get sufficient strength to do my household tasks. "I was afraid I would lose my health altogether, and this constant dread kept me uneasy. "I heard of Cardui and decided to try it. After I had taken it a few weeks, I felt much better. I continued the Cardui Home Treatment until I felt well and strong. I am now doing all my household work. I no longer feel those tired, achey pains. "For over fifty years, women who had suffered, or gotten into a run-down condition, have been enthusiastic in praise of Cardui.

Avenging Parrot

©1929 by NEA Service, Inc. By Anne Austin, author of 'The Black Pigeon', 'Rival Wives', etc.

THIS HAS HAPPENED

Mrs. Emma Hogarth, miser, said to keep money in her room on the second floor of Mrs. Rhodes' boarding house, is strangled to death. Bonnie Dundee, "cub" detective, assists Lieut. Strawn in the investigation.

Suspicion at once falls on Emil Sevier, former boarder, whom Mrs. Hogarth accused of trying to rob her and who has left town hurriedly. Cora Barker, theatre pianist, also a boarder, is arrested as a material witness against Sevier when she confesses she was in the murder room shortly after midnight.

Other boarders under suspicion are: Henry Dowd, Mr. and Mrs. Sharp, Norma Paige, Walter Styles, a financially insecure business man who had quarreled with Mrs. Hogarth; Bert Magnus, newcomer, amateur scenario writer, who is heard typing in his room until 12:15, and Daisy Shepherd.

All boarders agree to stay on except Daisy, who leaves. Dundee pays Styles a visit and finds him washing socks and a pair of gloves. Magnus, obviously in love with Cora, worries about her arrest. Dundee attaches significance to the utterance "Bad Penny" made by Cap'n, the victim's parrot, when he finds in her diary reference to a "D." of whom she lived and read. The postman, Mrs. Hogarth's only confident, says that the victim's monthly letter came from a Sally Graves in New York. Dundee recalls details of the mysterious murder of Sally Graves in New York a month previous, and concludes Sally was Mrs. Hogarth's daughter. The "D." of the diary is Sally's husband, Daniel Griffin, who embezzled a bank in Bolton, Mo. Strawn leaves for Bolton, placing Dundee in charge of the case. He meets Jewel Griggs, "cutie" stenographer and boarder, absent during the murder. Bonnie examines the boarding-house register to find registrants since Sally Graves' murder. He believes Griffin killed both women. But who is Griffin? Magnus and Dowd are the newcomers. Dowd's name is "printed" in suspicious child-like characters. A wire refusing Dundee's information about himself directs suspicion to him. Dundee searches Magnus' room.

NOW GO ON WITH THE STORY CHAPTER XXIX

"I think I've found the culprit who has been blowing out your fuses, Mother Rhodes!"

Mrs. Rhodes looked up from the check she was writing. Her black eyes snapped. "Then I'll give you a recommendation as a detective," she promised grimly. "What did you find?—a fan with a D. C. current? We have A. C. here—"

"Bert Magnus has enough electrical junk in his room to blow out a dozen fuses," Dundee laughed. "I never suspected he was mechanically inclined."

"He's not, and I'll have to take back that promise to give you a recommendation," Mrs. Rhodes retorted. "That box of junk was left behind by a boarder who sneaked out in the night with nothing but a suitcase, leaving me to whistle for the three weeks' board he owned me. I rented his room the very next day to Bert Magnus, before that worthless husband of mine had got around to storing the box in the basement."

Dundee grinned. "And Dusty still hasn't got around to taking the box away?"

"I did manage to push him up the stairs one night to do the job, but then he and Bert got to talking radio, and between them they thought they could construct a radio set out of some of the junk. It seems that most of the parts for a small set are there, but I could have told Bert then that it'd be a cold day in August when he got Dusty to do anything that looks that much like work. If the Rhodes House ever has a radio, I'll have to buy it. But since Bert didn't seem to mind having the box in his room, I thought I'd just leave it there till the 30 days are up. The law requires me to hold a boarder's trunk for 30 days before selling it to satisfy his unpaid board bill. Not that there's a chance that that electrical junk is worth $48, the amount Wheeler owed me. If he'd paid more attention to his job and less to that silly invention of his, he could have kept his job and paid his board bill."

"Invention?" Dundee inquired. "Oh, some silly gadget to be applied to a sewing machine," Mrs. Rhodes answered vaguely. "I never did get the straight of it, but he used my machine to try it out on. Well, have you found anything else to get all het up over?"

"Dundee flushed and laughed. "Nothing much," he evaded. "By the way, what's happened to Cap'n?"

"Norma took him, though it was more out of a sense of duty than anything else. Poor girl! I suppose that's all she'll get out of being Mrs. Hogarth's heiress, and she is afraid of the bird."

"I'm rather fond of Cap'n myself," Dundee smiled. "Believe I'll run up and take a look at him."

"If that means you're going to search Norma's room," Mrs. Rhodes began, frowning, "you'd better make quick work of it, for Norma comes home around half-past three."

"Where does she work, by the way? Those sound like banker's hours."

"She's not working now. She's going to business college, to learn to be a stenographer and bookkeeper. I reckon she'll be ready to work in Walter Styles' shop by fall, though personally I don't hold with a husband and wife seeing too much of each other—"

"When do they plan to be married?" Dundee asked, and hoped that Mrs. Rhodes' keen eyes would not discover his secret.

"In September, I think, unless Walter's business goes bankrupt before then. But I guess Norma would be a big enough fool to marry him anyway, and pay for the honeymoon out of her own savings. She was a kindergarten teacher for three years, but decided there wasn't enough chance for advancement."

Dundee hoped for more crumbs of information about the girl whose very name had the power to make his heart beat faster, but Mrs. Rhodes abruptly changed the subject.

"I'm going to depend on you, Mr. Dundee, to help make things as pleasant as possible for poor Cora. I'm giving you credit for enough sense to know she didn't have a thing to do with murdering and robbing Mrs. Hogarth."

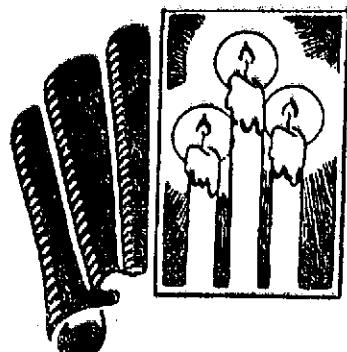

"Of course I agree with you, and I'll do my best—"

"You don't have to go so far as to make Bert jealous," Mrs. Rhodes interrupted, with one of her grim smiles. "Looks like the Rhodes House will have two weddings in the near future. I'm glad for Cora; she's a fine woman, even if she did let Emil Sevier make a fool of her."

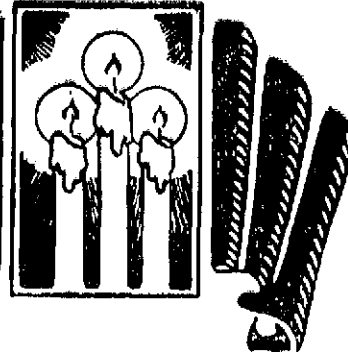

"Then you think that Cora and Sevier were—well, lovers?" Dundee probed diffidently.

"It'd thought so, I wouldn't have let it go on in my house," Mrs. Rhodes retorted. "But there was certainly a good deal of what the kids these days call 'heavy petting'—By the way, Daisy Shepherd is coming back here to board. I thought she would."

"What! She's changed her mind already?" Dundee exclaimed. "Daisy always was sort of flighty, but I'm mighty fond of her, so when she phoned at noon today and asked for her old room back, I told her to come right ahead. She'll be here in time for dinner tonight. I told her Sunday morning, when she came out into the kitchen and began to cry on my shoulder, that she'd want to come back to Mother Rhodes. She seemed to hate to leave as much as I hated to have her go—hung around in the kitchen all morning, first crying (Continued on page eight)

Books Take It on the Chin

From Baltimore and St. Louis come strange tidings. It seems the book-makers have been taking quite a few wallop on the chin, or rather let us say the pocketbook, which is a more tender spot. This, of course, leaves everybody terribly sorry. (Three cheers?)

In St. Louis the first signs of power-fall information are said to have appeared in early spring when the horses were running at Kenney Park, Florida. Big bettors, whose play runs over $100 a horse, are the fellows who have made several of the St. Louis bookmakers who went to St. Louis from Chicago and eastern cities were wiped out clean. Information coming from Maryland recently is reported to have cost three of the big "percentage guys" in St. Louis small fortunes. The Name Is Deceyrlng

One horse can ruin a great many bank rolls and in this case one horse played a dramatic part. The runner was Molasses Jane which won her first start as a 3-year-old a little over a month ago. She won at $30 for a $2 mutuel ticket and every book in St. Louis was loaded.

On her very next start she went over again at a fancy price and again bookies paid out big sums. As a result of this and other coups, the layers have dropped their payoff limits to 15 to 1 to win, 6 to 1 to place and 3 to 1 to show.

Players Wise Up

In Baltimore, "Captain of the Lawn" Phil Abrams, who has been following the horses in a big way for 41 years, most of the time a bookmaker, says "It's no road to wealth to quote odds against the horses these days."

"The player of today, with form charts, time trials and accurate knowledge of the physical condition of the horses know as much about the things that take place in the morning hours as the layer."

"The layer used to have his private clockers and this gave him an edge.

YES, MISSUS PLETZENBAUM—

DID YOU KNOW THAT

Murrel, the Army halfback, once played with Minnesota. . . . During the Illinois-Army game, Wolgast of Illinois snared an Army pass and went streaking down the field. Murrel after him. . . . Murrel said he tried to talk Wolgast into stopping. . . . He shouted at Wolgast, saying he was one of the Illini players. . . . but Wolgast was watching him out of the corner of his eye. . . . Finally, near the goal line, Murrel dived for Wolgast's feet, but Wolgast saw him coming and leaped to one side. . . . otherwise Murrel would have nailed him. . . . Bozy Burger, Maryland halfback, who scored two touchdowns against Yale, never played football until last year. . . . He said he didn't like the darned game.

track betters are pikers alongside the football bettors, who seldom put down less than $100 on dear old Siwash's chances.

On the Illinois-Army and Michigan-Harvard games, one St. Louis bookmaker is said to have dropped $15,000. Others took a licking, too.

Again, say we, it's just too bad. (Hooryay!)

Scrappers-Cats In Annual Tilt

Thanksgiving Game Big Event In Annual Schedule of Teams.

When the NashvilleScrappers invade Hope tomorrow afternoon for their annual struggle with Hope Bobcats it now appears the best mud-runner will win. The field, soft from the recent snow, is not hardening any under today's drizzle and after the Turkey Day frosts some laundry will have football togs in plenty to clean.

The Cats, desperate at the thought of going through the season without a win, are pepped up to give the Howard county boys the battle of their lives. There will be no lack of the old fighting spirit in those Cats as they trot out on the gridiron in their annual effort to keep the Scrappers from their old goal line.

Sickly Boy, 7, Gains 15 Lbs.—Father Happy

"My boy, 7, would not eat. I gave him Vinol and the way he eats and plays now makes me happy. He gained 15 pounds."—J. F. Andres.

"Vinol is a delicious compound of cod liver, peptone, iron, etc. The very FIRST bottle often adds several pounds weight to thin children or adults. Nervous, easily tired, anemic people are surprised how Vinol gives new pep, sound sleep and a BIG appetite. Tastes delicious. John S. Gibson Drug Co. —Adv.

MORELAND'S

Now the morning time trials are published by many agencies. Players today concentrate on three or four horses in a race. They used to bet all of 'em. The percentage has been wiped out. It is rare when one can get backed on as many as five horses in a 12-horse race.

"A lot of the layers have quit their side of the game and become players. 'Buzzy' Appleton, one of the big dealers in the player market, is one whose successful change comes to mind.

"A man is lucky to obtain 2 per cent of the odds he quotes nowadays."

In Football, Too

The same is true in football, according to Tom Kearney, dean of the St. Louis "brokers." Ex-collegians have taken thousands from the bookmakers there. Tom says most race-

COLDS MAY DEVELOP INTO PNEUMONIA

Coughs from colds may lead to serious trouble. You can stop them now with Creomulsion, an emulsified creosote that is pleasant to take. Creomulsion is a medical discovery with two-fold action; it soothes and heals the inflamed membranes and inhibits germ growth.

Of all known drugs creosote is recognized by high medical authorities as one of the greatest healing agencies for coughs from colds and bronchial irritations. Creomulsion contains, in addition to creosote, other healing elements which soothe and heal the inflamed membranes and stop the irritation, while the creosote goes on to the stomach, is absorbed into the blood, attacks the seat of the trouble and checks the growth of the germs.

Creomulsion is guaranteed satisfactory in the treatment of coughs from colds, bronchitis and minor forms of bronchial irritations, and is excellent for building up the system after colds or flu. Money refunded if not relieved after taking according to directions. Ask your druggist. (adv.)

use ESSO

Use ESSO, and forget starting troubles. Quicker "get-away"; lots more power and speed; gets you there in a hurry. Helps all motors--old or new. Look for the silver pump with the ESSO globe.

Avenging Parrott

and then laughing at herself for a big baby, but you'd have died laughing at the sight—munching at something nearly all the time. I never saw such a girl for eating in all my born days. Why, when I came back down after they'd arrested poor Cora and taken her away, there was Daisy—Oh, drat that phone! I guess it's another re-
But whoever it was and whatever further consequence in regard to Daisy's greediness had been interrupted, Dun-deed did not wait to find out. Very slowly, very thoughtfully, he ascended the stairs on his way to Norma Paige's room.
"There are so many possible angles to this fiendish case that I'll go dippy if I don't find a solution soon," the young detective told himself disgustedly.
"Hullo! Hullo!" the parrot greeted him cheerily as he entered the girl's room.
"Hello, Cap'n!" Dundee went to the cage and fearlessly reached in to stroke the green-and-yellow head. "I'm thinking of turning this pesky cage over to you, old sport. How about it?"

The parrot turned gravely on his perch and cocked a bright eye at the detective. "Bad penny! Bad penny!" he croaked, proud of the new addition to his extensive vocabulary.
"Right you are!" Dundee laughed. "Between us, we'll avenge your dead mistress yet, Cap'n. Thanks for reminding me."
He was more cheerful as he set about the disagreeable task of searching Norma Paige's room, for the par-rot's words seemed like a good omen.
The room, unlike Henry Dowd's, was replete of its owner's personality.
Dainty curtains of white voile, splashed with yellow daffodils, fluttered at the double windows, and the same material—immaculate, ruffled—was used for bedspread and dressing-table cover.
Dundee had a strong suspicion that the girl's own exquisite taste and competent little hands were responsible for this expensive daintiness, unusual even in so good a boarding place as the Rhodes House. Big, fleecy towels and awfully pretty little face towels of fine linen, all embroidered with a monogrammed "P" hung in the rack above the stationary basin, and upon the green burlap screen were tacked a score of water color sketches—undoubtedly the girl's own handwork, which she had once used in her kindergarten classes for the subjects were the sort to appeal to small children.

Against the wall near the door was a small table, bearing an old typewriter of the same make and vintage as the one used by Bert Magnus. He was later to learn that both machines had been rented from the same agency. Besides the machine was a stack of yellow second-sheet paper, also identical with that which Magnus used. In the little drawer of the table were a great many letters, some of them addressed in a bold, masculine handwriting, but most of them obviously from girls. Dundee glanced at them enviously. So many people knew her better than he did, but no one could think her dearer, sweeter, prettier—Fighting with the distaste he felt at the thought of rummaging among her intimate belongings, the young detective paused before the dresser.
In neat little silver frames there were three enlarged snapshots: one of Norma and Walter sitting very close together in the lawn swing; another of Bert, Cora and Norma on the front porch; the third a group of small children, with Norma a laughing nucleus for the charming picture. For a moment Bonnie Dundee was tempted to commit a small burglary on his own, but he had promised Mrs. Rhodes to leave everything as he found it.
He had scarcely closed her door after his unchivalrous visit when he heard light, swift steps upon the stairs.
"Oh, hello, Mr. Dundee!" Norma Paige greeted him with a cordial smile. She was swinging her broad-brimmed leghorn hat, and as she spoke she pushed the moist bronze curls from her white forehead. "Did you find a position today?"
"I'm afraid I was too lazy to hunt very hard for a job," he grinned, and hated the necessity for lying to her.
"But I've got a little scheme for work I can do in my own room. Had a private phone installed today," he explained, on the spur of the minute, for he knew his telephone would excite comment and speculation. Then, sounding more bold than he felt:
"Won't you be a Good Samaritan and come down to sit on the porch with me? I believe it's a little cooler now and I'm aching for some cheerful conversation."
"I'm awfully sorry," Norma interrupted hastily. A little stiffly she justified herself. "I've got to practice on the typewriter till dinner time. My first speed test tomorrow, and I'm simply terrible on typing."
"You have your own machine?"
he asked, to make conversation, so that he might hold her a little longer.
"Oh, no! I rented it, or rather Mr.
Magus rented it for me, since he was getting one for himself. It's a fearful old rattletrap, but it's good enough for practice work. I can use the machine at school only an hour a day and that's not enough for a slow poke like me."
